

Rahr 6-Row

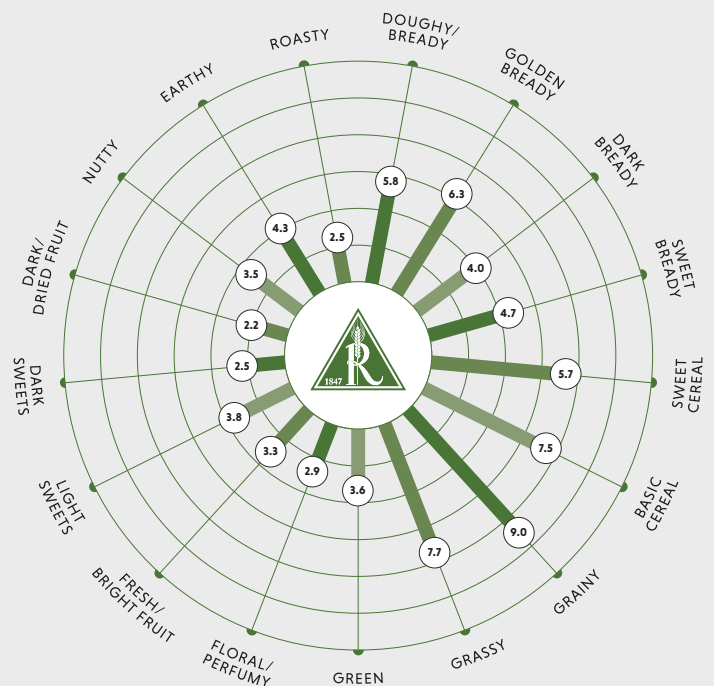

Rahr 6-Row is a light-colored base malt built for adjunct brewing. Made from a blend of North American grown 6-row barley, its high enzymatic power makes it particularly useful when brewing or distilling with large amounts of specialty malts, wheat malts, or unmalted grains such as oats, corn, or rice.

Rahr 6-Row is ideal for throwback styles that came about without the benefit of 2-row barley, specifically historical American lagers. It also plays well in Wheat beers, Cream Ales, high-gravity lagers, and other big-ABV one-offs. Rahr 6-row has an ample husk, high protein content, and a clean grainy profile that produces irresistible beers, bourbons, and vodkas.

Note: Using high proportions of 6-row barley may require protein rests in mashing.

For Brewers & Distillers
